JEALOUSY ACTUATES CHILD MURDER

MAN BELIEVED WIFE LOVED HER BROTHER MORE THAN HUSBAND

Six-Year-Old Boy Is Beaten To Death In
New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Luigi Panorella continued denials today that he had murdered his six-year-old brother-in-law, Salvatore Santamarco, although he did lead police to the spot where the trussed up body of the little boy was found in a burlap bag.

Police, hardened to crime in this major metropolis, said the murder was the most atrocious child killing in recent history.

And they blamed Panorella—who they claim to be extremely jealous because his wife would have nothing to do with him—for the crime although four other men also are held.

Several months ago Luigi married Fanny Santamarco in what police contend was a contract marriage in order to give a name to the daughter that later was born to Fanny. Most of the Italian colony that centers out and around Coney Island knew about the affair.

Fanny went back to her home after the matter of honor had been arranged.

But Luigi did not like his wife's leaving, police learned. He wanted her to return. She refused.

The daughter was born and the mother—a youngster only 16 years old—divided her love between the infant and her six year old brother, Salvatore, a smiling youngster who was popular in that great tenement district.

"You'll regret leaving, I'll fix you and your family," Panorella told his estranged child-wife, police claim they learned.

Wednesday Luigi met Salvatore and his elder brother Tommy. He invited them to his room to "see some nice things." Tommy was sent on two errands for sweetmeats.

When he returned the second time he asked for Salvatore.

"He is gone and you better go too," Luigi is reported by Tommy as saying.

Luigi was arrested and said he "wanted to come clean."

"I didn't kill him, but I know where his body is," he said.

He led police to the rear of his home and there in a burlap sack was found the body of Salvatore, fifteen feet of rope knotted in the body.

His face was bruised as though he had been beaten. The flesh on one arm was torn.

BAR WILL DECIDE ON ELECTION PROBE

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 7.—Members of the Cleveland Bar Association executive committee will meet at 4 p. m. today to decide whether they will ask Gov. A. V. Donahy to order a special grand jury investigation of alleged election frauds here.

County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton was to question John D. Fackler, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination to congress from the twenty-second district about charges made against Fackler by Attorney General Edward C. Turner.

Turner charged Fackler with "apparent" violation of the corrupt practices because he filed a personal expense account in excess of $4,000 when law limits expenditures to $2,000.

ASK REMOVAL OF ELECTION OFFICIAL

STUEBENVILLE, O., Sept. 7.—Removal of Howard L. Wickersham as deputy state election supervisor in Jefferson County is asked of Clarence Brown, secretary of state, in a letter signed by John F. Gilson and E. Dewitt Erskine. Gilson is chairman of the Republican county central committee. E. Dewitt Erskine recently was chosen to succeed Wickersham as chairman of the county executive committee. The two men charge Wickersham "is unfaithful to the Republican party and has conspired with Democratic leaders to create discord in the ranks of county Republicans."

PHILADELPHIA CRIME SUPPLY CENTER OF NATION CHARGED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—A picture of Philadelphia as one of the crime capitals of the nation—supplying eastern liquor supplies and underworld ammunition—was being drawn today as District Attorney John A. Monahan continued presentation of evidence to a special grand jury.

Monahan charged in a statement that he had evidence to present to the grand jury which would prove Philadelphia to be the center from which much of the eastern alcohol supply was derived. Quantities of this alcohol are sent to New York, he intimated.

The more sinister part of the investigation came from the testimony of the natty appearing Edward Goldberg, who has testified for hours before the grand jury. Goldberg operates a supply store.

Police contend the supply store is but an arsenal from which the underworld of many of the nation's cities—particularly the gangs of Chicago, New York and Philadelphia—obtain their lethal weapons.

Before the grand jury yesterday Goldberg is reported to have testified that he supplied Max "Boo Boo" Huff, erstwhile fight promoter and sportsman, with three machine guns and six bullet proof vests.

Authorities pointed out, however that Goldberg did not tell what had happened to 450 Vickers machine

SANDUSKY RUBBER PLANT DESTROYED

SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 7.—The Barr Rubber Products Company plant, destroyed by fire here last night with a loss of $250,000, probably will be rebuilt immediately, it was announced today.

The fire broke out about 6 p. m. and firemen were on the verge of getting it under control when a wind sprang up. Vats of chemicals added fuel to the flames.

The company manufactures rubber balls and other articles and employs sixty men and 140 women.

Several firemen were injured, none seriously, while fighting the blaze.

Origin of the fire has not been determined although it apparently started near one of the chemical vats.

NEW YORKER HEADS
POST OFFICE CLERKS

DECISION TO DIVIDE PRIZE MONEY FOR SWIM CRITICIZED

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 7.—Bitter criticism cropped out today at the decision of the Wrigley fifteen miles endurance swim committee to award $2,500 each to the fourteen final finishers in the Wednesday water derby.

No one completed the fifteen miles swim, Georges Michel, the last survivor, giving up at the end of twelve and one half miles. The bitterly cold water forced the 199 starters to withdraw.

Michel's handlers were particularly indignant, pointing out the Frenchman was the last man out of the water and that he had covered more distance than anyone else. They specially criticized the award of $2,500 to Norman Ross, pointing out he had remained in the water for only five miles.

The five mile consolation swim for a $5,000 prize already has been agreed upon for Saturday. Ross and Geo. Young are the favorites.

PRIVATE AIRPLANE TOUR ENDS FATALLY IN ROCKFORD CRASH

Pilot Killed, Four Injured When Wire Is Struck

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—An 8,000-mile airplane tour of the United States and Canada—one of the most ambitious private tours yet attempted—came to a tragic end at Rockford, Ill., late yesterday.

M. R. Headley, pilot of the Packard Electric Co., Stinson-Detroit plane whose home port for months was Cleveland Airport, was killed when the plane's propeller grazed a power wire and the craft dived into the Rock River.

A. N. Wolcott, president, and B. N. MacGregor, sales manager, of the Packard Company at Warren, O., were at the Rockford Airport, entertaining a group of automotive distributors when the crash occurred. They had accompanied Headley on a long swim to the United States and were due home in a few days.

Four Rockford men, passengers in the plane, were injured, two of them seriously, according to John S. King, of the John S. King Co., who arranged the trip and was prevented from going along because of illness.

Headley was a familiar figure at Cleveland Airport. The plane was sold to the Packard Company by Thompson Aeronautical Corporation and kept at the Thompson hangar for months until the Warren Airport was completed.

TO QUIZ CONFESSED CHILD SLAYER FOR DETAILS OF MURDER

Prosecutor Is Not Satisfied With Woman's Story

CANTON, O., Sept. 7.—Efforts to force further details of the killing of eight-year-old Dorothy Evanovich from the girl's step-mother, Mrs. Caroline Evanovich, 30, were to be made today by Prosecutor Henry W. Harter.

Mrs. Evanovich is held on a first degree murder charge. Her husband, Mike Evanovich, the dead girl's father, is held as a material witness. It was planned to bring the two together today.

Harter is not satisfied with Mrs. Evanovich's story that she merely pushed the girl into the drain pool in which her body was found.

Deputy sheriffs were asked by Harter to search the territory surrounding the drain ditch and the Evanovich home at Elton for a weapon with which the girl might have been beaten.

The girl's father was taken into custody after Mike Winick, 16, a hired hand at the Evanovich home, testified Evanovich had cautioned him to be careful what he said.

Plans to take Mrs. Evanovich back to her farm home and have her re-enact the events that led up to her confessed abandonment of the child in the murky drain pool may be carried out today.

VETERAN MINSTREL DIES IN INDIANA

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 7.—Will H. Gray, 73, minstrel stage veteran, died today in Lafayette, Ind., according to word received by relatives here. Following his minstrel activities he appeared in popular Hoyt farces and later in motion pictures.

BELIEVE FOILED ROBBER IN HOSPITAL

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—Police today were awaiting return to consciousness of a man in Lutheran Hospital who is believed to be the robber driven to a $30,000 haul in the O. E. Tachau Fur Co. yesterday by a kick in the stomach.

Oscar E. Tachau, who administered the kick, has partly identified the man as one of two robbers who attempted to lock him and two employees in a fur vault. The employees, Oliver Sterder and Nellie Schultz, will look at the man today.

LATE GAME SAVES TOWN

Deputy Sheriff Returning From Card Party Routs Store Thieves.

EATON, O., Sept. 7.—Because a card party broke up about 2 a. m., today, a gang of robbers traveling in a yellow-trimmed sedan bearing Illinois tags, was unable to carry out a carefully laid plan to loot every business house in this city.

Surprised in a filling station, Andrew Wright, private night watchman, was bound, gagged, robbed of keys to business places, and dumped into a cornfield two miles north of here by four men in the sedan. Meanwhile a fifth man looked over the ground.

Returning to town, the robbers entered Spring Brothers department store and were busy carrying

ANTI-SMITH FORCES IN SOUTH MAY COMBINE ELECTORS STATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A plan to consolidate anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans of the south behind a single group of Hoover electors is being worked out in five southern states.

The scheme is designed to prevent division of the anti-Smith vote.

Under the electoral system, a ballot is cast off for the presidential candidate but for the elector who is pledged to that candidate. If the anti-Smith Democrats put one state of electors in the field against the regular Republican slate, the anti-Smith vote would be split.

But under the consolidation arrangement both the anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans will be able to vote for the same slate of electors.

The scheme already has been adopted in Georgia and Alabama and is contemplated in Texas, Louisiana and North Carolina, according to reports the candidate has received. In Florida a Republican slate has been named and in Mississippi there will be three slates.

The only southern state in which the anti-Smith Democrats have not organized is South Carolina, where the Republican vote is very small.

LIQUOR SYNDICATE ABSORBING LITTLE SPEAKEASY OWNERS

Alcohol And "Sweat" Whisky Principal Products

(This completes the United Press series of background articles on the gang situation in Philadelphia. Editor.)

BY HARRY FERGUSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—The rise of gang rule in Philadelphia has placed the small speakeasy proprietor in a difficult position. He has a choice now between paying out most of his profits for protection or going out of business.

The result is that many of the speakeasies are passing from the control of independent owners into the hands of the liquor syndicate that is only too glad to eliminate the middleman and thus increase its own earnings.

The former owner of a modest speakeasy on Walnut Street explained the situation.

"A member of one of the two big gangs came into my place about two months ago," he said, "and demanded $500. I had to give it to him for otherwise my place would have been held up every night or so until there would have been no stock left."

"Two nights later a member of the rival gang came in and said he would guarantee to protect me against hold-ups if I would give him $500. I told him I had just paid $500 for a month's protection against stick-ups and he wouldn't take it. I couldn't afford to pay out any more."

"All right," the gangster said, "Then I'll stick up your joint right now."

"I had to give him the $500 or lose all my stock. Shakedown like that are what drive us out of business."

Philadelphia bootleggers concentrate on two brands of liquor—alcohol and "sweat" whisky. The latter is the recent discovery of a bootlegger here and is now the most widely sold brand in the east.

"Sweat" whisky is made by obtaining charred barrels in which bona fide liquor has been aged in Canada or Cuba. Into these barrels is poured water.

CESSNA MONOPLANE PILOT STILL HEADS RACE CONTESTANTS

Bad Weather Again Delays Class A And B Planes

WICHITA, Kas., Sept. 7.—Earl Rowland in his Cessna monoplane, led the national air derby race into Wichita today, landing at the municipal airport at 8:35 a. m.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Start of Class B and Class C airplanes in the transcontinental air derby was postponed today until 7:15 a. m. tomorrow because of unfavorable weather.

Officials had decided earlier to postpone the flight, but pilots protested and the postponement was deferred until finally it was ascertained that even west-bound mail planes could not take off today.

It was the sixth postponement within twenty-eight hours.

Under the original schedule the pilots were due in Oklahoma City tonight and they expected to reach Los Angeles Monday. Leaving tomorrow it will be virtually impossible for them to reach Los Angeles before Wednesday.

Chafing under the delay, the pilots refused to give up hope until the final word that no plane would be allowed to clear the field was given.

Motors which had been warmed up, were turned off and blanketed. Pilots and passengers had to remove baggage from a number of the planes after having waited since dawn for the starting signal.

A Cessna monoplane piloted by Francis C. Bowman entered in the class B race, announced its withdrawal and has left the field. All of the other planes that came here for the race are ready to leave.

The entire personnel of the Piggy Wiggly stores will continue under control of the Kroger Co.

The Piggy Wiggly name and system also will be maintained by Kroger.

STUEBENVILLE, Sept. 7.—Charles Freiling, eldest of a family of five sons and four daughters, was made chief beneficiary of an estate of $75,000 by the will of John F. Freiling, who was found dead last week.

Freiling was shot to death. A suicide verdict was returned, but investigation into his death is being continued.

Freiling bequeathed his second wife, Mrs. Agnes Perkins Freiling, whom he married a few months before, a sum of $200,000. Each of the other eight children were bequeathed $50,000.

DODGES TRAINS

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 7.—N. H. Sears, 25, of Chicago, was crossing the New York Central bridge over the Maumee River last night when he was struck by the locomotive of a slow-moving passenger train. The impact threw him onto another track in the path of a freight train. The engineer of the freight train brought it to a halt a few feet away from Sears. He was only bruised about the hips and head.

MUST ALLOW VOTE

AKRON, O., Sept. 7.—Officials of Kenmore must place on the November election ballots a proposal for annexation to Akron or appear in the court of appeals here September 11 to show cause for failure to do so. The order was issued by the court on request of W. V. Sterki of Kenmore, business man and leading advocate of annexation plans.

PILOT MISSING

GALLIPOLIS, Sept. 7.—Captain Elmer Fancher, 57, one of the best known pilots on the Ohio River, today was reported missing from the steamer "Betsy Ann." It was believed that Fancher either fell or jumped overboard during the night. His clothing, money and shoes were found in his stateroom. Fancher's home was in Foster, Ky.

WORKERS STRIKE

CANTON, O., Sept. 7.—Two hundred striking employees of the Central Alloy Steel Corp., one of the country's largest steel producers, were ordered today not to molest workmen or interfere with operations of the company's plant. Injunction orders, issued by Commissioner Judge A. W. Agler, were served on the men by Sheriff Ed Gibson's entire force of deputies. The men have been on strike since August 6.

WANT INCREASES

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 7.—Voters here in November will be asked to approve an amendment to the city charter increasing the salary of city councilmen from $3,000 a year and lengthening the term of office from two to four years. Mayor Joseph Hetterman signed the proposal.

RUTH ELDER REFUSED EMBRACES SAYS HUBBY

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Sept. 7.—Charging that Ruth Elder scorned his efforts to embrace her by saying "don't be a damned fool!" Lyle Womack has filed suit in the Canal Zone district court for divorce from the aviator.

The specific charge is one of cruelty.

Womack alleged numerous cruel acts but particularly emphasized her attitude upon her return from Paris after her unsuccessful attempt to fly across the Atlantic.

He said he greeted her in New York, attempted to embrace her and was scorned.

He said that despite his affectionate overtures Ruth told him he was not wanted and that his presence was causing embarrassment to her and her friends.

He said that ever since the transatlantic flight her attitude had been one of scorn and contempt.

Ruth Elder today scouted rumors that she planned to marry Ben Lyon, actor, if a decree of divorce is granted her husband, Lyle Womack, now in the Panama Canal Zone.

The aviatrix confided, however, that she "might marry again when this divorce affair is over."

She replied to her husband's charge of cruelty by saying "He probably did feel hurt when I tried to coax him to get a job."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

While in Ephesus Paul receives reports of an unhappy state of affairs in the Corinth church—party divisions and strife, and laxity in morals—and he writes them this letter of correction and advice.

V. 10 "That we be perfected together in the same mind and judgment." Unity of mind is a fundamental necessity of cooperation and fellowship in any field of thought and service. Unity in the marriage bond, in the home, in a business firm, in a political party are necessary to permanence and success in these relations. It is in logical line with this principle that we must have unity of mind in religion. Unity of principle there must be.

V. 11 "Contentions and strife." An unhappy state of affairs had arisen since Paul's departure from them. Modern Christians are subject to the same temptations that beset those of Corinth.

Vs. 12-13 "Some followers of Paul, others of Apollos, others Cereas" (the Aramaic name for Peter) and still others followers of Christ." Such a spirit has not died out of the Christian church and has divided it through the centuries. Such divisions, of course, are not peculiar to the church but equally found in all fields of human cooperation resulting in great national and international controversies and in war itself. Yet they are peculiarly ruinous in the Christian church where we are theoretically all one body in Christ and members one of another.

Vs. 5-6 "I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increase." Apollos was a cultured Jewish Christian convert who is described as an "eloquent man" and "mighty in the Scriptures."

Following Paul at Corinth, watering the seeds Paul had planted, caring for certain members of the church by his fluent speech. Divisions frequently arise over ministers with different gifts. Different people with different gifts are needed in the church, each with his own work.

V. 9 "For we are God's fellow workers; we are God's husbandry, God's building." God and man are working together in all the fields of life.

V. 10 Paul "laid a foundation." "Another building thereon." We are all doing this. Other men have labored and we have entered into their labors. If we all had to start at the beginning again and work out our own language and learning, science, art, government and civilization, we would never get beyond the border of barbarism. But we find immense foundations under us. "But let each man take heed how he buildeth thereon." There are foundations and foundations.

V. 11 "For other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Some things are done once for all and cannot be improved or changed. There is one fixed and final foundation on which to build our lives forever—Jesus Christ—the same yesterday, today and forever.

V. 21 "Wherefore let no one glory in men." There is some truth in the teaching of every thinker, whatever his name or school of thought.

V. 22 "All things are ours." Paul draws up his catalogue of the things that were his and we may extend it indefinitely. All things are ours—whether of astronomy or geology, science, literature or philosophy, or art—and Paul's catalogue widens to take in "the world, or life or death, or things present, or things to come; all are ours." These all belong to us that we may turn them into our service and make them yield a harvest of blessing.

for as announced; sources where the desired information may be secured should be given; assignments should be made with special interest which might have to do with cause and effect; consider the ability and capacity of the pupil in the work involved; assignment should be made around the essentials in lesson material; due appreciation for work assigned should be fittingly expressed.

2. What is the Project Method of Teaching? The project method has to do with giving pupils something to do that they cannot do without finding out what you would like to have them know. By this method the pupil is brought face to face with something to do, a problem to be solved. According to Dewey, the mind is the instrument by which we overcome obstacles, and "thinking takes place only when action is checked." The project method is based on the principle that where there is no problem there is no thinking. The function of the teacher is not to solve the problem of the pupil but by cooperating with the pupil assist him in furthering his own efforts in the solution of the problem.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. What are the causes of division in the church? Some of the cures?
  2. What riches have we as Christians in common? Why do we so seldom get together as Christians?
  3. What practical steps can we take toward being at one with others?
  4. How seriously has the Christian church been injured by its divisions?
  5. How far should we go in yielding ground in order to avoid strife?
- Clericus says "Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."—Ps. 133:1. The white light is beautiful because it contains a harmony of all the colors. The church is a better place because there you must make friends with all sorts and conditions of men.

THE BETTER WAY

WORLD PEACE

Daniel Poling says "My conviction is that the disarmament of the United States must be on the basis of world disarmament, based on agreements with other nations. We must go forward in this stupendous adventure of peace together. There is a vast difference between thus maintaining an adequate defense and assuming an aggressive building program challenging the world to naval competition, stirring up fresh suspicions and endangering national good-will."

"It cost a great price to win the war. We cannot win peace and perfect it without paying for it. The disposition on the part of many of us to spring at the throats of those who lift their voices for good-will for progressive disarmament and international peace machinery is unfortunate and sometimes become so violent as to be discreditable."

"Some of the most distinguished leaders in public life are vilified because in utter patriotism and with the courage of their convictions they speak the words of statesmanship and dare to point out the better way." D. Carl Yoder.

The Church Invites You

FACTS WITH AN APPEAL

It is reported that there are more than 10,000,000 young men in this country who belong to no church, 7,000,000 of them who never enter a church and the number of young women who live equally godless lives is scarcely less appalling.

Ask your pastor the number on the church roll and count the average attendance at the church service and it will be discovered that less than half of the church members attend church; this situation warrants a statement similar to the one made by Alexander when told by a cowardly soldier that his name was also Alexander. The reply being, "Change it immediately sir, or learn to honor it."

Next Sunday has its call for worshipers, professed Christians being expected to attend public services of worship especially, and others cannot be excused. Why not accept the invitation and come to church next Sunday?—D. Carl Yoder.

GLIMPSES OF OHIO HISTORY

Agricultural Madison County

At the junction of U. S. Highway forty-two with State Highways fifty-six and one forty-two is the town of London, county seat of Madison County—now one hundred eighteen years old, boasting the second largest furnace and sheet metal factory in the nation.

It was in 1810, after long periods of battles and treaties with the Shawnees, Wyandots, Delawares and Mingoes, that Madison County was laid out and the County seat of government established under the name of London.

In a shack constructed on North Water Street the first school was opened nearly five years later. Madison County witnessed the rise and fall of the famous stage coach era with the coming of the National Pike a quarter of a century later, and the taverns of her small towns entertained such noted characters as Henry Clay, Davy Crockett, Zachary Taylor, Wm. Henry Harrison, James K. Polk and other famous men.

Madison County has become essentially an agricultural section with its rich farms of as many as five hundred to several thousand acres under one ownership and management.

If you would get a true picture of agricultural America, then visit Madison County. You'll find Smiling Lorce Service all along your route.

Madison County, Ohio, is known throughout the state for its agricultural resources, many of the farms comprising large acreage suggestive of the states of the Western Plains.

PHI DELTS BEAT KIWANIS IN FIRST CONSOLATION FRACAS

In a contest featured by good and bad but far from indifferent playing, the Phi Delt defeated the Kiwanis Club 24 to 16 in an abbreviated twilight game, the first of a three-game series to decide which has the worst softball team, Thursday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The game was called at the end of the seventh inning when darkness overtook the contending teams.

Both teams batted hard but the National League cellar champions won by making fewer errors than the American League last-placers. Kiwanis was credited with thirteen misplays and the Phi Delt with only six.

Kiwanis overcame a six-run lead and was ahead 10 to 7 at the end of the second round, but the advantage was short-lived as the Phi Delt crossed the plate five times in the third and thereafter were never headed.

Wells pitched for the winners with Harve Coates working for Kiwanians until succeeded in the seventh by Jim Adair.

The second struggle is scheduled for Friday night and the third, if necessary, next Monday night.

Lineup of the Phi Delt: Hagler, 1b; McFadden, 2b; Stiles, 3b; Sutton, ss; L. T. Marshall, cf; Max Marshall, c; Smith, if; McDonald, rf; Wells, p.

Kiwanis lineup: Coates, 2b; Fairies, 3b; Adair, 2b; Tull, c; Jack Bayey, cf; K. Babb, rf; J. C. Marshall, ss; Cope, if; Eckerle, 1b.

RESERVES AND COPS PLAY SECOND GAME

Reserves will again have the Dayton Police as their opponents in the second game of the three-game series Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

The Reserves got off to a flying start last Sunday by winning the first game of the series 8 to 3, playing errorless ball and batting hard behind the airtight pitching of Schliff.

The local nine needs only one more victory to clinch the series and the Police will be striving to even the count. Manager Jesse Chambliss is expected to send Guy McMichael, Bellbrook product, to the mound in an effort to make it two straight from Dayton.

ARTILLERY UNIT TO STAGE REUNION AT DAYTON NEXT WEEK

An appeal is being made to all members of the 322nd Field Artillery, whether they only attended the training period at Camp Sherman or were in France and Germany during the World War, to make an effort to attend the annual reunion to be held in Dayton, Saturday, September 15.

Headquarters will be at the Gibbons Hotel, Third and Ludlow Sts. Registration will be at 10 a. m. but members are advised that somebody will be present all day so that no matter what time they arrive they will be welcomed.

A fine program has been arranged from morning until midnight. A banquet and entertainment will be held at the Gibbons in the evening.

It is announced that the organization has only the addresses of the men who have attended previous reunions, so that unless Greene Countyans are among that number they will receive no further notification.

For hotel reservations or further information write Frank Lott, 715 N. Broadway, Dayton, O.

Janet Mary James, eighteen and pretty, becomes a stage star in New York, appearing in productions of Mort Sildstein, noted producer. She falls in love with Ballard Riley, who is a professional man and fearful of publicity. They are married, but Ballard persuades Janet to say nothing in the meantime, for the little stage star is being prominently mentioned in the newspapers on account of a gift of $12,000 to further her musical education bequeathed by "Putt" Sigelow, who commits suicide and leaves Janet the amount. Janet had always repulsed "Putt" and hated him. As a result of the publicity, Janet decides to leave New York with Lotus Flower, little Chinese maid, and seek a position in Pittsburgh. They are accompanied by little Denny Reilly, Janet has taken when her mother died and pleaded with her to look after the little fellow. Janet and Lotus Flower are leaving New York without Ballard knowing about it.

Janet is afraid she will be recognized. On her arrival in Pittsburgh, she sets out to find herself an office position.

She succeeds in getting a position as secretary to Barrie Bassett, but is apprehensive because Barrie has one of her stage pictures framed in his office and she believes he will find out who she really is. Janet goes under the name of Mary Odette.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

Janet sank into a chair and covered her face with her hands. Of all the crazy coincidences, had anyone in the world ever had quite such a trick played upon them? In her nervousness and shock she laughed suddenly, and threw back her head.

"What lovely Sunday magazine material this would make!" She sat dully, for a while, feeling trapped and choked. Then she walked to the large mirror and looked at herself, long and earnestly. It wasn't possible that anyone would recognize her without her long hair.

They, too, her eyes seemed to look different. And with her severe business clothes, it was nonsense, Barrie Bassett would never recognize in little work-day Mary Odette, the Broadway butterfly, Janet James, who had won his admiration across the footlights in the "Blue Laws of 1928."

Suddenly Janet's sense of humor came to the fore. She really found herself smiling at the situation. Then, by turns, she would be frightened and amused. Her nerves were about at the breaking point with the play that had been brought to bear on them in the past few days.

She thought of Ballard and was swept with a hopelessness that made her sick with longing. She was his wife. But what a farce it all was! Must she go through life with just that one afternoon in the studio to remember as her own?

Fride struggled with despair, and in the hour that Janet spent alone in her new office she pulled herself together. By the time Barrie Bassett strode in, with his hat tilted on the side and swinging a cane, she was able to greet him as any girl might. What was saying good morning to her new boss for the first time.

He nodded a crisp "good morning," then something in her southern throaty voice caught his ear and he turned and looked at her suddenly. His stare was long and impertinent.

"You have a nice voice—a southern voice. I like girls around me whose voices are pleasing to my weary ear."

Janet stood with her face averted toward the window, her heart beating wildly. What if he should recognize her voice?

Barrie Bassett threw himself in the chair at his desk and she turned with a nervous little smile to find him looking at her closely with a curious, half-amused look in his eye.

"What did you say your name was?"

"Mary—Mary Odette."

Janet nearly choked on the words, and when Bassett said, "Yeah—nice name, Mary," she felt her knees growing weak under her.

"Well—Mary?" She felt that he dwelt on the Mary. "How about taking a letter. Can you take dictation?"

Janet's answer was a meek little "yes, sir." And she reached for a pad and pencil. Half in shorthand, and half in long hand, she managed to get through it—and to keep the pad concealed so that Bassett would not know how ignorant she was of secretarial work. It was a letter to a New York firm ordering six new shirts and a dozen ties.

When Janet had finished the letter he signed it, not taking his eyes from her face.

"Do you think you are fooling me?"

"Well, Hair is easily cut—and it's being done." He stepped very close to her—so close that his breath felt hot on her cheeks. She stepped back, her hand suddenly going to her heart—then sat down in a chair.

"Why are you so pale—Janet James?" She heard his voice coming to her from what seemed a great distance. "Do you think you are fooling me?"

He went on cruelly, as she sat with her hands over her face. "Fool me? When I sat in the front row every night for two weeks and worshipped you—idolized you—went crazy over you. Then one night at the Guinan club I sat at the next table and listened to you talk, and danced so close to you—I touched you."

"Please—please," Janet gave a scared little cry. "Please let me go—and say nothing—oh, you mustn't give me away."

"Give you away?" He stepped close and shook his head. "Not now, when I have you right here in my office. I'm the best friend you have. Come to lunch and we'll talk it over. Meet me downstairs in fifteen minutes. What say?"

Janet felt hopelessly trapped—sick.

reels is poured the raw corn and rye whiskey which the bootleggers make. The kegs are then placed in a steam room and the barrels of the real liquor that the barrels contain is "sweated" into the raw rye and corn. The genuine flavor makes it possible to sell $150 whiskey for $10 and $12 a quart.

The alcohol trade is carried on on a bigger scale, and shipments are made to all sections of the country. Even before prohibition the Philadelphia was the center of the industrial alcohol industry and now, officials say, the city's liquor ring supplies the necessary ingredient for a large part of the nation's gin.

Most of the alcohol plants—there are supposed to be at least eight large ones here—run as perfume factories, and the alcohol which is shipped out on trains is labeled either "perfume" or "paint."

The large volume of alcohol that moves out of Philadelphia each week makes it imperative that the liquor syndicate has a small army of guards and "trailers." That is where the gangsters come in. They hire themselves out to the syndicate to see that the liquor shipment reaches its destination.

When one gang is in the hire of the syndicate, the rival gang will turn hijackers and stick-up men to earn its living. Thus there is a constant warfare—a battle which is likely to flare into murder at any minute.

Many persons who have investigated the Philadelphia liquor ring erroneously link it with Scarface Al Capone's gang in Chicago. Philadelphia gangsters say they have no connection with Capone.

BELLING BIRDS

Sleigh bells is the unique method being employed by one W. Market St., resident in an effort to drive away black birds that become a nuisance about this time of the year by infesting tree tops in certain parts of the city.

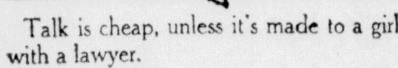

The bells, hung in the trees, are attached to a string connecting with the owner's residence. When the racket made by the pests becomes great, the owner merely pulls the string, jingles the bells and the birds scatter. The success of the plan is only temporary, however, as the birds always return the following evening. Roman candles have been tried with some slight success in other communities.

ANOTHER VICTORY! NEW HEALTH COMES THROUGH KONJOLA

Stomach Trouble and Kidney Pains Are Quickly Ended by This New Remedy

This celebrated Konjola medicine helps Nature restore the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy, normal action. Most of the common disorders of the important functional organs have been conquered by this new compound. The people of Xenia are strongly endorsing it. Over a hundred testimonials have been received within a few short weeks, all from men and women in this vicinity and the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, is kept busy each day explaining this remarkable remedy to local people. One of the latest endorsements came from Mrs. Mary Gooding, Stelton Road, this city, who made the following statement:

"I want to endorse such a wonderful medicine as your Konjola," said Mrs. Gooding. "It stopped my stomach and kidney trouble when all else failed."

"I was in a general rundown condition and my stomach was the worst of all. After nearly every meal gas would rise up into my chest and throat cutting off my wind and virtually choking me. I bought everything I could, to help relieve this awful ailment, but I could never find anything that would do me the slightest bit of good. A hot, sour, bitter liquid would then come up into my mouth burning like fire and the only relief I could get from it would be soda and even then the relief would only be temporary. My heart would flutter and palpitate so much that at times I thought I had heart trouble. My kidneys were in a frightful condition and the pains caused by them were untold. My feet and ankles would swell and the pains across the small of my back were terrific. At night I couldn't sleep well but had to rise several times due to bladder weakness. The following morning when I got up I felt worn out and I didn't feel like doing anything. These many ailments were sapping my weight and strength so much that soon I was just a mere semblance of my former self."

"This was my condition before I found Konjola and there were times when I would have been thankful if something would have happened to end it all. My husband had gotten such a wonderful relief by taking Konjola that I thought I would try it too and see if it wouldn't help me. I commenced taking it and before the first bottle was gone I could see a vast improvement coming over my whole system in general. I continued with this medicine until I had completed a full treatment. Now, my stomach trouble is over, I can sit down and eat anything that is placed before me without suffering the least bit of after eating pains. My kidneys are well and strong again and when I go to bed I can sleep right on through the night without ever having to get up. I honestly feel one hundred per cent improved and I owe all my good health to Konjola."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this remedy.

ANTIOCH OPENING NOT TO BE DELAYED

While authorities at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, will be somewhat inconvenienced in placing incoming students because of the fire August 30 which partly destroyed West Hall, men's dormitory, the blaze has not delayed the opening of the college.

Work has already been begun on rebuilding the least damaged end of the building, and it is estimated that one-half of the dormitory will be ready for occupancy within a week when the college opens, and the other half in another month.

Work has been held up pending

inspection by insurance adjusters. The twenty men, who would normally room in the part of the building that was completely destroyed, will be temporarily housed in other places in the village.

EXPECT 650 WILL COME TO ANTIOCH

With registration of new students at Antioch College scheduled to take place Monday, September 10, students will come from all over the United States, thirty-six states being represented, and from many foreign countries as well.

The college enrollment for the year is estimated at 650.

With the freshmen of Division "B" stopping at college before going to their jobs, Antioch has already taken on the appearance of mid-year activity.

Students who are now coming to college leave Saturday and their places will be taken by students who are to start school with Division "A" under the co-operative system of education.

The new students were entertained Thursday night at an informal meeting at the home of David S. Hanchett, dean of men, and at a party at North Hall.

ROWLAND LEADS PLANES TO KANSAS JEALOUSY ACTUATES CHILD MURDER

MAN BELIEVED WIFE LOVED HER BROTHER MORE THAN HUSBAND

Six-Year-Old Boy Is Beaten To Death In
New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Luigi Panorella continued denials today that he had murdered his six-year-old brother-in-law, Salvatore Santamarco, although he did lead police to the spot where the trussed up body of the little boy was found in a burlap bag.

Police, hardened to crime in this major metropolis, said the murder was the most atrocious child killing in recent history.

And they blamed Panorella—who they claim to be extremely jealous because his wife would have nothing to do with him—for the crime although four other men also are held.

Several months ago Luigi married Fanny Santamarco in what police contend was a contract marriage in order to give a name to the daughter that later was born to Fanny. Most of the Italian colony that centers out and around Coney Island knew about the affair.

Fanny went back to her home and the matter of honor had been arranged.

But Luigi did not like his wife's leaving, police learned. He wanted her to return. She refused.

The daughter was born and the mother—a youngster only 16 years old—divided her love between the infant and her six-year-old brother, Salvatore, a smiling youngster who was popular in that great tenement district.

"You'll regret leaving, I'll fix you and your family," Panorella told his estranged child-wife, police claim they learned.

Wednesday Luigi met Salvatore and his elder brother Tommy. He invited them to his room to "see some nice things." Tommy was sent on two errands for sweetmeats.

When he returned the second time he asked for Salvatore.

"He is gone and you better go too," Luigi is reported by Tommy as saying.

Luigi was arrested and said he "wanted to come clean."

"I didn't kill him, but I know where his body is," he said.

He led police to the rear of his home and there in a burlap sack was found the body of Salvatore, fifteen feet of rope knotted in longshoremen's knots around the body. His face was bruised as though he had been beaten. The flesh on one arm was torn.

BAR WILL DECIDE ON ELECTION PROBE

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 7.—Members of the Cleveland Bar Association executive committee will meet this p. m. today to decide whether they will ask Gov. A. V. Donahy to order a special grand jury investigation of alleged election frauds here.

County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton was to question John D. Fackler, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination to congress from the twenty-second district, under charges made against Fackler by Attorney General Edward C. Turner.

Turner charged Fackler with "apparent" violation of the corrupt practices because he filed a personal expense account in excess of $4,000 when law limits expenditures to $2,000.

ASK REMOVAL OF ELECTION OFFICIAL

STUEBENVILLE, O., Sept. 7.—Removal of Howard L. Wickersham as deputy state election supervisor in Jefferson County is asked of Clarence Brown, secretary of state, in a letter signed by John F. Gilson and E. Dewitt Erskine. Gilson is chairman of the Republican County central committee. E. Dewitt Erskine recently was chosen to succeed Wickersham as chairman of the county executive committee. The two men charge Wickersham "is unfaithful to the Republican party and has conspired with Democratic leaders to create Republicans."

PHILADELPHIA CRIME SUPPLY CENTER OF NATION CHARGED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—A picture of Philadelphia as one of the crime capitals of the nation—supplying eastern liquor supplies and underworld ammunition—was being drawn today as District Attorney John A. Monaghan continued presentation of evidence to a special grand jury.

Monaghan charged in a statement that he had evidence to present that would prove Philadelphia to be the center from which much of the eastern alcohol supply was derived. Quantities of this alcohol are sent to New York, he intimated. The more sinister part of this investigation came from the testimony of the natty appearing Edward Goldberg, who has testified for hours before the grand jury. Goldberg operates a supply store.

Police contend the supply store is but an arsenal from which the underworld of many of the nation's cities—particularly the gangs of Chicago, New York and Philadelphia—obtain their lethal weapons.

Before the grand jury yesterday Goldberg is reported to have testified that he supplied Max "Boo Boo" Huff, erstwhile fight promoter and sportsman, with three machine guns and six bullet proof vests.

Authorities pointed out, however, that Goldberg did not tell what had happened to 450 Vickers machine

SANDUSKY RUBBER PLANT DESTROYED

SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 7.—The Barr Rubber Products Company plant, destroyed by fire here last night with a loss of $250,000, probably will be rebuilt immediately, it was announced today.

The fire broke out about 6 p. m. and firemen were on the verge of getting it under control when a wind sprang up. Vats of chemicals added fuel to the flames.

The company manufactures rubber balls and other articles and employs sixty men and 140 women. Several firemen were injured, none seriously, while fighting the blaze.

Origin of the fire has not been determined although it apparently started near one of the chemical vats.

DECISION TO DIVIDE PRIZE MONEY FOR SWIM CRITICIZED

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 7.—Bitter criticism cropped out today at the decision of the Wrigley fifteen miles endurance swim committee to award $2,500 each to the fourteen final finishers in the Wednesday water derby.

No one completed the fifteen miles swim, Georges Michel, the last survivor, giving up at the end of twelve and one half miles. The bitterly cold water forced the 139 starters to withdraw.

Michel's handlers were particularly indignant, pointing out the Frenchman was the last man out of the water and that he had covered more distance than anyone else. They specially criticized the award of $2,500 to Norman Ross, pointing out he had remained in the water for only five miles.

The five mile consolation swim for a $5,000 prize already has been agreed upon for Saturday. Ross and Geo. Young are the favorites.

PRIVATE AIRPLANE TOUR ENDS FATALLY IN ROCKFORD CRASH

Pilot Killed, Four Injured When Wire Is Struck

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—An 8,000-mile airplane tour of the United States and Canada—one of the most ambitious private tours yet attempted—came to a tragic end at Rockford, Ill., late yesterday.

M. R. Headley, pilot of the Packard Electric Co., Stinson-Detroit plane whose home port for months was Cleveland airport, was killed when the plane's propeller grazed a power wire and the craft dived into the Rock River.

A. N. Wolcott, president, and B. N. MacGregor, sales manager, of the Packard Company at Warren, O., were at the Rockford airport, entertaining a group of automotive distributors when the crash occurred. They had accompanied Headley on a long swim about the United States and were due home in a few days.

Four Rockford men, passengers in the plane, were injured, two of them seriously, according to John S. King, of the John S. King Co., who arranged the trip and was prevented from going along because of illness.

Headley was a familiar figure at Cleveland airport. The plane was sold to the Packard Company by Thompson Aeronautical Corporation and kept at the Thompson hangar for months until the Warren airport was completed.

The girl's father was taken into custody after Mike Winick, 16, a hired hand at the Evanovich farm, testified Evanovich had cautioned him to be careful what he said.

Plans to take Mrs. Evanovich back to her farm home and have her re-enact the events that led up to her confessed abandonment of the child in the murky drain pool may be carried out today.

GOVERNOR SMITH TO OPEN HIS CAMPAIGN AT OMAHA, NEBRASKA

Will Discuss Farm Relief, Water Power, Prohibition

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith will open his presidential campaign in territory claimed by the enemy beyond the Mississippi the week after next by tackling at the outset the three issues he has made dominant—farm relief, water power and prohibition.

He will deal principally with the farm question in his first address at Omaha, Neb., the center of the wheat belt, on Sept. 18. He will discuss the water power issue, with particular emphasis upon the Boulder Dam project, in his third speech at Denver, Colo., Sept. 22. Colorado being one of the seven states involved in that monster water power, irrigation, and flood control project.

The Democratic candidate also will talk generally of other campaign issues, including prohibition, in these two speeches, and the second one at Oklahoma City, Okla., on Sept. 20. He is expected rather to emphasize his intention, if elected to enforce rigidly the eighteenth amendment and Volstead Act, in discussing prohibition, leaving more detailed discussion of his modification program to his appearances in the west eastern states.

LATE GAME SAVES TOWN

Deputy Sheriff Returning From Card Party Routs Store Thieves.

EATON, O., Sept. 7.—Because a card party broke up about 2 a. m., today, a gang of robbers traveling in a yellow-trimmed sedan bearing Illinois tags, was unable to carry out a carefully laid plan to loot every business house in this city.

Surprised in a filling station, Andrew Wright, private night watchman, was bound, gagged, robbed of keys to business places, and dumped into a cornfield two miles north of here by four men in the sedan. Meanwhile a fifth man looked over the ground.

Returning to town, the robbers entered Spring Brothers department store and were busy carrying out clothing when Kenneth Swisher, deputy sheriff, passed by on his way home from a card party.

Swisher opened fire, which was returned by the robbers who were armed with sawed-off shotguns. Wright freed himself and returned after the robbers had escaped. He said the gang took only the keys, telling him they didn't want his $45.

The Spring store was looted of $1,800 worth of merchandise three weeks ago.

Newlyweds in Air Marathon

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Kenyon, of Boston, who have entered their Challenger plane in Class A event in coast-to-coast air marathon from Roosevelt Field, L. I., to Los Angeles, Cal. Planes in classes "A" and "B" will stop at 16 cities en route to the coast.

ANTI-SMITH FORCES IN SOUTH MAY COMBINE ELECTORS STATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A plan to consolidate anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans of the south behind a single group of Hoover electors is being worked out in five southern states, headquarters of Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate, was informed today.

The movement is in the hands of southern Democrats opposed to Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, and the Republican national committee is spending no money to promote the project, it was said officially.

The scheme is designed to prevent division of the anti-Smith vote. Under the electoral system, a ballot is cast off for the presidential candidate but for the elector who is pledged to that candidate. If the anti-Smith Democrats put one state of electors in the field against the regular Republican state, the anti-Smith vote would be split.

But under the consolidation arrangement both the anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans will be able to vote for the same slate of electors.

The scheme already has been adopted in Georgia and Alabama and is contemplated in Texas, Louisiana and North Carolina, according to reports the candidate has received. In Florida a Republican slate has been named and in Mississippi there will be three slates.

The only southern state in which the anti-Smith Democrats have not organized is South Carolina, where the Republican vote is very small.

ELDEST SON GETS MOST OF ESTATE

STUEBENVILLE, Sept. 7.—Charles Freiling, eldest of a family of five sons and four daughters, was made chief beneficiary of an estate of $75,000 by the will of John F. Freiling, who was found dead last week.

Freiling bequeathed his second wife, Mrs. Agnes Perkins Freiling, whom he married a few months ago, $200. Each of the other eight children were willed $5.

DODGES TRAINS

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 7.—N. H. Sears, 25, of Chicago was crossing the New York Central bridge over the Maumee River last night when he was struck by the locomotive of a slow-moving passenger train. The impact threw him onto another track in the path of a freight train.

The engineer of the freight train brought it to a halt. A few feet away from Sears, he was only bruised about the hips and head.

MUST ALLOW VOTE

AKRON, O., Sept. 7.—Officials of Kenmore must place on the November election ballots a proposal for annexation to Akron or appear in the court of appeals here September 11 to show cause for failure to do so. The order was issued by the court on request of W. V. Sterki of Kenmore, business man and leading advocate of annexation plans.

RUTH ELDER REFUSED EMBRACES SAYS HUBBY

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Sept. 7.—Charging that Ruth Elder scorned his efforts to embrace her by saying "don't be a damned fool!" Lyle Womack has filed suit in the Canal Zone district court for divorce from the aviator.

The specific charge is one of cruelty. Womack alleged numerous cruel acts but particularly emphasized her attitude upon her return from Paris after her unsuccessful attempt to fly across the Atlantic.

He said he greeted her in New York, attempted to embrace her and was scorned.

He said that despite his affectionate overtures Ruth told him he was not wanted and that his presence was causing embarrassment to her and her friends. He said that ever since the trans-Atlantic flight her attitude had been one of scorn and contempt.

CESSNA MONOPLANE PILOT STILL HEADS RACE CONTESTANTS

Bad Weather Again Delays Class A And B Planes

WICHITA, Kas., Sept. 7.—Earl Rowland in his Cessna monoplane, led the national air derby race into Wichita today, landing at the municipal airport at 8:35 a. m.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Start of Class B and Class C airplanes in the transcontinental air derby was postponed today until 7:15 a. m. tomorrow because of unfavorable weather.

Officials had decided earlier to postpone the flight, but pilots protested and the postponement was deferred until finally it was ascertained that even west-bound air mail planes could not take off today.

It was the sixth postponement within twenty-eight hours. Under the original schedule the pilots were due in Oklahoma City tonight and they expected to reach Los Angeles Monday. Leaving tomorrow it will be virtually impossible for them to reach Los Angeles before Wednesday.

Chafing under the delay, the pilots refused to give up hope until the final word that no plane would be allowed to clear the field was given.

Motors which had been warmed up, were turned off and blanketed. Pilots and passengers had to re-leave baggage from a number of the planes after having waited since dawn for the starting signal.

A Cessna monoplane piloted by Francis C. Bowman entered in the class B race, announced its withdrawal and has left the field. All of the other planes that came here for the race are ready to leave.

The entire personnel of the Piggy Wiggly stores will continue under control of the Kroger Co. The Piggy Wiggly name and system also will be maintained by Kroger.

LOST MAD MONEY

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 7.—The loss of money with which he planned to obtain a divorce from his wife resulted in his arrest, Edward R. Bondeck, Beaumont, Tex., contended today when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner John Budd on charges of violating the Mann act. The charge was brought against the defendant by a sixteen-year-old Detroit girl, who Bondeck said, became angry when he chided her for losing the divorce fund.

William Bolan, special agent of the department of justice, told the court he found the couple living together here. Bondeck has a wife and three children.

PILOT MISSING

GALLIPOLIS, Sept. 7.—Captain Elmer Fancher, 57, one of the best known pilots on the Ohio River, today was reported missing from the steamer Betsy Ann. It was believed that Fancher either fell or jumped overboard during the night. His clothing, money and shoes were found in his state room. Fancher's home was in Foster, Ky.

WORKERS STRIKE

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

While in Ephesus Paul receives reports of an unhappy state of affairs in the Corinth church—party divisions and strifes, and laxity in morals—and he writes them this letter of correction and advice.

V. 10 "That we be perfected together in the same mind and judgment." Unity of mind is a fundamental necessity of co-operation and fellowship in any field of thought and service. Unity in the marriage bond, in the home, in a business firm, in a political party are necessary to permanence and success in these relations. It is in logical line with this principle that we must have unity of mind in religion. Unity of principle there must be.

V. 11 "Contentions and strifes." An unhappy state of affairs had arisen since Paul's departure from them. Modern Christians are subject to the same temptations that beset those of Corinth.

Vs. 12-13 "Some followers of Paul, others of Apollos, others of Cephas (the Aramaic name for Peter) and still others followers of Christ." Such a spirit has not died out of the Christian church and has divided it through the centuries. Such divisions, of course, are not peculiar to the church but equally found in all fields of human cooperation resulting in great national and international controversies and in war itself. Yet they are peculiarly ruinous in the Christian church where we are theoretically all one body in Christ and members one of another.

Vs. 5-6 "I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increase." Apollos was a cultured Jewish Christian convert who is described as an "eloquent man" and "mighty in the Scriptures." Following Paul at Corinth, watering the seeds Paul had planted, cultivating certain members of the church by his fluent speech. Divisions frequently arise over ministers with different gifts. Different people with different gifts are needed in the church, each with his own work.

V. 9 "For we are God's fellow-workers; ye are God's husbandry, God's building." God and man are working together in all the fields of life.

V. 10 Paul "laid a foundation" . . . "another buildeth thereon." We are all doing this. Other men have labored and we have entered into their labors. If we all had to start at the beginning again and work out our own language and learning, science, art, government and civilization, we would never get beyond the border of barbarism. But we find immense foundations under us. "But let each man take heed how he buildeth thereon." There are foundations and foundations.

V. 11 "For other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Some things are done once for all and cannot be improved or changed. There is one fixed and final foundation on which to build our lives forever—Jesus Christ—the same yesterday, today and forever.

V. 21 "Wherefore let no one glory in men." There is some truth in the teaching of every thinker, whatever his name or school of thought.

V. 22 "All things are ours." Paul draws up his catalogue of the things that were his and we may extend it indefinitely. All things are ours—whether of astronomy or geology, science, literature or philosophy, or art—and Paul's catalogue widens to take in "the world, or life or death, or things present, or things to come; all are ours." These all belong to us that we may turn the into our service and make them yield a harvest of blessing.

REGAINING AND MAINTAINING HEALTH

Theodore Roosevelt was a sickly child. It was a question in his own family whether he would ever arrive at maturity. The family, instead of coddling the youth, sent him into the great northwest plains to rough it on a cattle ranch. There he lived on plain fare, and rode a broncho from sunrise till dark—often before sunrise and after sunset.

He returned to his home tired, and slept soundly until the morning call came again. That was what made him such a robust man.

Plain fare, plenty of outdoor life, with exercise, is the natural condition in which man may not only regain health but maintain it. D. Carl Yoder.

1. How Assign a Lesson in the Sunday School? One of the weak places in Sunday School teaching is not giving any attention to the assignment and stimulation and study of the next lesson. The following suggestions may be helpful: Reserve the first or the last five minutes of the teaching period for making definite assignments; indicate definite information wanted; individuals or to a group with a leader keeping a record of such assignment which will be called for as announced; sources where the desired information may be secured should be given; assignments should be made with special interest which might have to do with cause and effect; consider the ability and capacity of the pupil in the work involved; assignment should be made around the essentials in lesson material; due appreciation for work assigned should be fittingly expressed.

2. What is the Project Method of Teaching? The project method has to do with giving pupils something to do that they cannot do without finding out what you would like to have them know. By this method the pupil is brought face to face with something to do, a problem to be solved. According to Dewey, the mind is the instrument by which we overcome obstacles, and "thinking takes place only when action is checked." The project method is based on the principle that where there is no problem there is no thinking. The function of the teacher is not to solve the problem of the pupil but by co-operating with the pupil assist him in furthering his own efforts in the solution of the problem.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

What are the causes of division in the church? Some of the cures?

2. What riches have we as Christians in common? Why do we so seldom get together as Christians?

3. What practical steps can we take toward being at one with others?

4. How seriously has the Christian church been injured by its divisions?

5. How far should we go in yielding ground in order to avoid strife?

Clericus says "Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."—Ps. 133:1. The white light is beautiful because it contains a harmony of all the colors. The church is a better place because there you must make friends with all sorts and conditions of men.

LESSON PRAYER

Gracious Lord, help us each to see that our building is on the One Foundation, conforming to it in all its lines and angles, so that in every storm and flood it will not fall but stand forever.

BOOK REVIEW

"Ethics of Achievement," by Herbert Patterson, Richard G. Badger, publisher, The Gorman Press, Boston, is an introduction character education, discussing problems in a frank, straightforward way. Six hundred and twenty-nine definite questions on ethics are asked and answered.

"Present-Day Dilemmas in Religion," by Charles W. Gilkey, Cokesbury Press, Nashville, Tenn., $1.50, contains the 1927 Vanderbilt University Cole lectures based on Paul's confession—"That they may know the mystery of God, even Christ, in whom are all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge hidden."

He returned to his home tired, and slept soundly until the morning call came again. That was what made him such a robust man.

THE BETTER WAY

Daniel Poling says "My conviction is that the disarmament of the United States must be on the basis of world disarmament, based on agreements with other nations. We must go forward in this stupendous adventure of peace together. There is a vast difference between this maintaining an adequate defense and assuming an aggressive building program challenging the world to naval competition, stirring up fresh suspicions and endangering national good-will."

"It cost a great price to win the war. We cannot win peace and perfect it without paying for it. The disposition on the part of many of us to spring at the throats of those who lift their voices for good-will for progressive disarmament and international peace machinery is unfortunate and sometimes become so violent as to be discreditable."

"Some of the most distinguished leaders in public life are vilified because in utter patriotism and with the courage of their convictions they speak the words of statesmanship and dare to point out the better way." D. Carl Yoder.

The Church Invites You

FACTS WITH AN APPEAL

It is reported that there are more than 10,000,000 young men in this country who belong to no church, 7,000,000 of them who never enter a church and the number of young women who live equally godless lives is scarcely less appalling.

Ask your pastor the number on the church roll and count the average attendance at the church service and it will be discovered that less than half of the church members attend church; this situation warrants a statement similar to the one made by Alexander when told by a cowardly soldier that his name was also Alexander. The reply being, "Change it immediately sir, or learn to honor it."

Next Sunday has its call for worshipers, professed Christians being expected to attend public services of worship especially, and others cannot be excused. Why not accept the invitation and come to church next Sunday?—D. Carl Yoder.

GLIMPSES OF OHIO HISTORY

Agricultural Madison County

At the junction of U. S. Highway forty-two with State Highways fifty-six and one forty-two is the town of London, county seat of Madison County—now one hundred eighteen years old, boasting the second largest furnace and sheet metal factory in the nation.

It was in 1810, after long periods of battles and treaties with the Shawnees, Wyandots, Delawares and Mingoes, that Madison County was laid out and the County seat of government established under the name of London.

In a shack constructed on North Water Street the first school was opened nearly five years later. Madison County witnessed the rise and fall of the famous stage coach era with the coming of the National Pike a quarter of a century later, and the taverns of her small towns entertained such noted characters as Henry Clay, Davy Crockett, Zachary Taylor, Wm. Henry Harrison, James K. Polk and other famous men.

Madison County has become essentially an agricultural section with its rich farms of as many as five hundred to several thousand acres under one ownership and management.

If you would get a true picture of agricultural America, then visit Madison County. You'll find Smiling Lorce Service all along your route.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A CLEAR JUDGMENT — Wisdom strengthened the wise more than ten mighty men which are in the city.—Ecc. 7:19.

JUDGES AND CONTEMPT

One of the most difficult of jobs is that of being a judge. The higher the bench, the more difficult the job.

One of the circumstances that makes many citizens proud of America is the generally high average of character and performance among judges. Quite generally the judges feel the responsibility of their jobs so keenly that they carry off the role in a most admirable way.

The exceptions are extremely painful for an American to look upon. They are the cases in which small-calibre men have been mistakenly elevated to important positions.

And a judge's bench is no place for a small-souled man. A judge, under our system of procedure, is a dictator. If he doesn't like you, he can send you to jail for contempt of court.

It takes a real man to sit year after year on a judicial bench and never abuse his power. But, to the everlasting credit of America be it said, most of our judges make just such a record.

In Brooklyn recently a federal judge abused a reputable lawyer with language that one man doesn't use to another unless the other man is in the language-user's power. When the lawyer protested that he had never been talked to in that manner by a judge before, the man on the bench said, "Would you like to go to jail with your client?"

Well, there's no answer to that that a civilized man can make. The reputable lawyer walked right out of the courtroom. Was he in contempt of that court? If he wasn't he was no natural man.

This lawyer sat him down and wrote a letter to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, reciting the incident in detail, and in scathing, scorching language, denouncing that judge. The papers printed the letter, and thus the lawyer, who had to take whatever the judge gave him in the courtroom, had his say before the millions whose opinion is really the supreme judgment.

A judge can fine or imprison one citizen for contempt, but what's he going to do about the millions?

BYRD'S EXPEDITION

The first section of Richard E. Byrd's Arctic exploration party has set sail from New York on its long voyage and arduous trail into the cold and silent space of the earth. It will be no picnic party, and these men face an experience calling for all their energy and endurance.

No one can quite know what secrets this most hidden part of the world may have to give up. Infinite mysteries lie hidden beneath these eternal snows. The results may not seem very tangible to the ordinary person, but from those regions may be obtained the facts to solve many of the most difficult scientific problems.

Some people think wars are a benefit to a country, but the gardeners say the battle with the weeds gives them all the excitement they need.

It is said that young people don't sleep enough now, but anyway after they fly across some ocean they are usually willing to sleep awhile.

WOMEN AND WORK

Dispatches some days ago carried news of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens at the age of 73. Mrs. Stevens was known as one of the earliest advocates of the idea that all women should work. She was one of the first New York society women to go into business.

Mrs. Stevens' idea caught on quickly enough. Every year more and more women entered business. They have adopted practically all trades and professions. The death of one of the pioneers in the idea of the women in business recalls vividly how recent the habit is.

INSPIRATION

Dependence on inspiration is a form of laziness. Dependence on inspiration is the reason that so many people do so little. Much useful work and fair success could be accomplished by scores of people who do little because they are waiting for the right moment—the moment of inspiration. The time to begin work is when your judgment tells you. You may not feel the slightest heartbeat of inspiration but you can pound it out just the same. And if you keep on working the chances are the product will improve.

EASY DIVORCE

Indian squaws of certain tribes divorce their mates by placing the man's shoes or moccasins out of doors. That's a convenient form of divorce and if it were adopted here and now in the average American town, the streets would doubtless be filled with shoes. Woman, having to remain at home a greater part of the time and condemned to staid and more monotonous work than the average man, becomes more tired of her job than man does.

If woman did not have patience superior to man's there would be fewer successful marriages than there are.

SOFTER

Americans tend to soften up in their physical habits. When John Quincy Adams was president of the United States it is said he used to swim the Potomac river almost every summer morning. Even in such recent years as when Roosevelt was President, T. R., accompanied by Archie Butt or some other close friend, used to swim right through any stream that blocked his way when he was out on a hike. He didn't stop to take his clothes off.

Rubber tires and shock absorbers have gradually done something of a

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK. — The same vanishing which is common to Americans in every country of the globe, is to be found among natives of various states and cities in New York. New York has a state society for nearly every state, with native sons and daughters of this nation or that meeting regularly to keep alive their active associations.

Frequently groups of former residents of this state or that will be found gathered in one section of New York in a community much like the colonies formed by foreigners in the city.

A girl radio artist from Tuscaloosa who has been singing in New York radio programs was given publicity in one of the afternoon papers. Within two days she heard from more than two dozen persons from Tuscaloosa, most of whom lived within a few blocks of each other in New York.

Fewer than 10 per cent of the visitors to the Woolworth tower are regular residents of New York, the manager of the tower concedes.

Probably that percentage goes for the rest of the New York sights which interest visitors from other places most. New Yorkers never see them.

The New York detective invariably is depicted in the movies as a strenuous-looking or heavily-bellied individual with a bull neck and leather face.

Well, H. F. Cordes, probably the most famous of detectives of the New York police department among members of the force and police reporters, is a man of boy-fish-like build who looks like a Wall Street clerk. He was too small to be a patrolman, but got an appointment as detective after passing the course in the police training school with high honors. His favorite pastime is, and no fooling, reading detective stories.

Incidentally, the equivalent of the newspaper "morgue" is being created by all movie producers. They are recording and filing away for future use everything from the noise of airplane motors to pig squeals. Thus when a picture calls for a plane leaving the field, or for a close-up of a barnyard, records from the "morgue" can be played in the studio and the sound be directly transmitted to the film of the scene.

Ordinarily I have no complaint with the way the rich dispose of their money (they don't try to tell me what I shall do with mine!) but I can't help feeling like somebody ought to do something when I learn of a rich woman who spends $50,000 a year on her lap dog (one does) or a man who wears an article of clothing, whether it be dress suit, shoes, silk hat or diamond tiepin, only once before throwing it away or passing it to a servant. And I feel like going down and buying a copy of the American Mercury to tell the poor when I get a glimpse of a woman with evening slippers (not gem-studded heels (not brilliant) and mock-tingbird feather uppers, price $5,000 a pair.

She tells of her arrangements and the amount of money she found would cover expenses. This mode of travel has become so popular in the last few years that other families may be helped by her suggestions. This is how she travels:

"We fasten a convenient home-made cupboard on the side of the car, and carry a refrigerator drawer in the trailer. After packing in our staple supplies and necessary utensils, we have room for a few cans of fruit, home-canned chicken and our cold pack vegetables."

About $10 a week cover expenses including milk. We use some powdered milk when in doubt about the purity of other milk. Apples are obtainable most of the time at little or nothing in cost from farm places near camp sites.
Boiled Honey Apples—Clean and core six apples. Place in covered pan with one-half cup of honey and one-half cup of water. Simmer until done. Sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg and serve.

INFLUENCE OF THE FISHING SEASON ON POLITICS

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

KEEPING
WITHIN THE BOUNDS
OF PROPER PROPORTIONS

"Man's good looks is dependent upon his physical fitness. Women, from the days of the immortal Helen, have considerable control over what their men shall look like. Of course, no wife can take her husband's exercise for him, but she can caddy for him at golf if she is not able to put up a good game. Or at least lend interest, understanding and companionship. Men really need two hours of exercise a day, and how a busy man is to get it is indeed a problem.

Fortunately, every good man's club has some kind of a gymnasium or a swimming pool attached to it. A few minutes with horizontal bars, the medicine ball, plain track running or handball will do a good deal towards keeping a man at the peak of good condition. Walking regularly either to or from the office or at least the distance too long, is another suggestion it is well for you to pass along to your men folk. I know of very few men who could not be coaxed into a game of tennis with their own wives, and I have known lifelong friendships between brother and sister to result from mutual participation in outdoor sports. It is something to think about.

It is an old saying and a trite one, that "nobility loves a fat man." It doesn't happen to be true, but even at that, I think the majority of us would prefer keeping our husbands at the weight they were when we married them rather than see them grow slow and aged before their time because of a preponderance of weight.

Men require more food than women. The diet of a man from eighteen to twenty-five calls for about thirty-six hundred calories. Occupation, of course, must be considered when we are planning diet. An active man needs two or three times as many calories as a sedentary worker. Should you find that your men are continually flirting with a tendency to overweight, you can almost, without their knowledge, cut down on the very starchy and fattening foods.

There are very few men who will insist upon potatoes if you can give them an interesting substitute, and with all the fresh vegetables and canned ones flooding our market from every corner of the world, I don't know why the clever housewife cannot continually intrigue a man's dietary interest without making him suffer for it in overweight.

Men always have the best of a woman when it comes to weight. A man of twenty-seven years of age, six feet in height, can reach 190 pounds and still be not one ounce overweight. Perhaps you may be interested in reading the normal height and weight tables for men. I am beginning with 5 ft. 10 in., 25 years. The weight should be 149 pounds.

Carpenter, who was considered a perfectly proportioned man in the pink of physical health at 22 years of age, weighed 172 lbs. and was 5 ft. 11-1/2 in. tall. Dempsey, one year younger, was 6 ft. 1 in. tall, and weighed 198. Dempsey, of course is decidedly muscular, and because of that, his weight is relatively higher.

With these few hints, I admonish you to check up on your husband's height and girth, and whip him into shape with his co-operation, or perhaps even, almost in spite of himself.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"DIABETES FOLLOWS
OVERWEIGHT CHIEFLY

Diabetes, Overweight and Gangrene

"Dear Doctor: Please talk about this case:

"My friend, about 25 years old, apparently in good health until he injured one of his toes, about three years ago, which developed a bad infection, was taken to a hospital where the doctors thought his leg might have to come off. He lost two toes on the foot, then the infection appeared to heal. Since that time, the trouble has broken out in the other foot. Does this sound like diabetes? He has not the usual fatness that comes with diabetes."

First let me tell you that not all cases of diabetes are preceded by overweight. Seventy-five to 90 per cent of the cases are.

try of the body, caused by the excessive and unbalanced diet, is what has upset the pancreas; plus, perhaps, the injury due to the disposition of the fat. It is also possible that the pancreas had a low grade infection which didn't disable it until the advent of the unbalanced diet and the increased weight.

Your friend evidently has some form of gangrene. Gangrene is a menace to those who have diabetes. However, there are other things besides diabetes that may cause gangrene also. Anything that shuts off the blood supply will cause it. It may be possible that your friend has a hardening of some of the arteries in his feet, shutting off the blood supply, so that the tissues are not nourished.

Aside from hygienic living, perhaps local measures—massage, electric heat (diathermy), ultra-violet rays, etc., may be beneficial. But your friend must be under the constant care of his physician.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

The meanest man I have heard of in an entire week is a fellow who sells washing machines. He went to an employment agency and got in touch with several scores of women who make a business of going about from house to house, selling washing machines. Then he made a deal with a number of these women that whenever they struck a home with no washing machine they should raise a rumpus about the place being so poorly equipped and threaten not to come again. The salesman's idea was to appear at such homes a day or so later. When ever a sale resulted from this line of attack he gave the wash woman a liberal commission.

are consulted for everything from falling hair to falling toe nails. So I'll chance my trouble. "When I was about 15, my brother kicked me. His foot was heavily shod and it caught me right at the end of the tailbone. It was quite six months before it ceased to ache. I'm now 24, and when I sit down, it hurts me. I have a sharp pain there which bothers me terribly. It comes on especially when I have been working hard and on my feet all day. It does not hurt when I am sitting; it is just in the going down process, if you get when I mean. It has always pained me some, and the last six months I have been bothered with it continually."

"M."

Boys will be boys!

It is probable that the coccyx—it really is the tailbone—was fractured, a not unusual occurrence from such an accident as you have experienced. M., or from a severe fall. It may be that the fracture has not united or that it has united in an abnormal position. In your case, and when the muscles and ligaments which are attached to it are in action, it causes a pressure on the nerves. It may also be possible that scar tissue has formed, which causes pressure. Such pain as you experience is known as coccydynia.

You must go to a physician for an examination and treatment. It may be necessary to have an operation (which is not a serious one) to straighten this out. Hot Stitz baths, heating compresses, diathermy (electric heat), may be helpful.

FEATURES

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — 'Tis an old trick of the prize ring veteran to linger in his dressing room as long as he can, the while his rival sits squirming in his corner—waiting.

The seasoned fighter knows that this delay bothers its victim, which is sound generalship. The crowd, too, gets tired of watching one lone pug, kicking his heels in impatient impatience, maybe for fifteen minutes—all keyed up to do his darndest and then contemptuously left to sizzle, under a full head of steam, to suit the enemy's convenience. The second warrior's appearance, at long last, comes as a relief to the bored fans. They give him a good hand, and he wades in with the gang's plaudits ringing in his ears—stimulating to him and depressing to his adversary.

The quadrennial Republican-Democratic mill is supposed to open with the candidates' formal notification that they really have been nominated. It cannot start earlier than that, for how can the opponents begin to exchange swats until they know that the match has been arranged between them?

Well, Kid Hoover and Batting Al both have been notified now. The scrap is on. It was due to no trickery on Smith's part in this instance, however. Kid Hoover was kept waiting for two weeks, following his acceptance address, for Smith to climb through the ropes, coincidentally with his acceptance address. Political custom decreed it. The Democratic campaign always lags a fortnight behind the Republican campaign—until the gong rings.

The fact remains that Kid Hoover was kept waiting. Some people hold that a two weeks' "head start" is an advantage in the Republican candidate's favor. He is nominated first, he is notified first and he is able to get into action first, they argue.

It may be so sometimes. The Republican candidate generally wins, certainly. Perhaps that bears out the theory.

However, I question whether it is true in this instance. My guess would be that his two weeks wait must have been rather trying to Kid Hoover.

Four years ago Cautious Calvin knew in advance, beyond the shadow of a surmise, that Douglas Davis could not hit him. Two minutes or two weeks or two months—time meant nothing in that case.

This is altogether a different type of engagement.

Confident as the Republican candidate may have been, and may yet be, he cannot possibly have been unaware that he was up against stiff competition.

Ever since the Houston convention no political fight in the country can have failed to realize that when Batting Al leaped from his corner, it would be a-fighting.

Kid Hoover's policy performance is defensive. His game is to cover up and protect his party's record as effectively as he may be.

Batting Al's policy, equally of absolute necessity, it has all along been obvious, must be furiously aggressive—which is just the kind of policy Al was designated by nature to pursue to the ultimate maximum.

Does it stand to reason that the Republican gladiator can have waited those two weeks without some qualms of nervousness? We shall soon see whether or not he shows any signs of same. This fight bids fair to be the farthest thing in the world from a mere scientific exhibition.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

BETTER TO LOVE AND LOSE
THAN NEVER TO KNOW
LOVE

"Tis better to have loved and lost," the poet sings, "than never to have loved at all." So many young people write me of their love troubles. Some seem almost trivial; the sufferers are so young I know they will love again and yet again before they finally mate, and will look back on their youthful heartaches with a smile. Others love more deeply, and the pain of the parting of the chord of love will leave deep scars. But even the most heart-broken of all who write, would probably not exchange the sad, sweet pain of their broken romance with the one who has never known love's ecstasy and agony.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am sometimes so blue that I just don't know what to do. I sit around and think about nothing at all. I am seldom happy. I am deprived of everything, company, dancing, movies, clubs, socials etc. I do not work because my mother is not well. I seldom get any money to spend. If I had a chance to get married I certainly would, but how on earth am I ever to get acquainted with a nice fellow if I am not allowed? I am just as good as dead. I am 27 years old and hope for my Prince Charming to come yet. I know I am getting older and I will not be wanted."

"ME AND MY SHADOW."

If you could leave your mother to get married, surely you could leave her to work, and that is the best thing you could do. Get yourself work where you will meet people and have interests outside. If you decide you cannot do that, don't sit and "think of nothing at all" as you say. That is not good for you, mentally or physically. Get hold of some work you can do at home and send books to read. You can borrow them from the public library, and if you read travel and biography and good stories you will find much to interest you and fill your mind. You are of age, you know, and need not be a slave, even to tyrannical parents.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a fellow for several months though not steadily. I do not love him. It seems I'm always seeing his faults instead of his good points. Do you think I should stop leading him on to false hopes, or should I let the matter rest and treat him as a friend? I really cannot do that because he doesn't want to be a friend; he wants to be a sweetheart."

"I shouldn't think he'd have any 'false hopes' if you treat him as badly as you say you do. Rainy. If he insists on being a sweetheart you will have to tell him you can't love him that way, but if he comes without any encouragement I don't know what you can do unless you tell him the house or positively refuse to see him. Maybe he thinks he can overcome your objections in time."

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

ON PENGUIN ISLAND

"How do Penguins learn to swim?" demanded Peter and the Bunnies. Bobolink, always glad to tell all he knew, began another story.

"You see the Penguins, too, are distant relatives of the Cormorant, and on his way back from visiting Pelican he stopped off to see them."

"He said they live on a rocky island; they are good natured birds and thousands and thousands of them live together. He had no idea the first time he saw them that there were so many birds in the world."

"Cormorant had sent word by a gull that he was coming and the Penguins were ready to welcome him. He noticed at once that there was no confusion in spite of their numbers. The young birds were in one section, the old birds in another, the birds that were losing their feathers in a third, on so on. His cousin explained to him afterward and told him that every Penguin knew his place, and if a bird that was losing his feathers should dare to venture among those that had already moulted and were in good health the latter would become very angry and drive the intruder back where he belonged."

"Cormorant noticed that Penguins were constantly changing places, some going to sea and others returning to land, but he said not once did he notice them running into each other or getting into the wrong sections."

"The mothers when they had to move—carried the eggs they were hatching away with them. You'd never guess how they kept the eggs warm. Not in a nest at all, but by holding them close to their bodies."

"And I'll bet you can't guess how the Penguins teach their children to swim?" continued "Cormorant, his great green eyes wide

"I wish you could see what queer wings the Penguins have. They can't fly a length, but they use them for paddles when they are in the water and for fun feet when they are on land. Run! Well, you ought to see them. They can go almost as fast as I can swim, and that is saying a good deal. When Penguins are not in a hurry they walk upon their webbed feet, standing upright just as the Two-Legs do!"

PHI DELTS BEAT KIWANIS IN FIRST CONSOLATION FRACAS

In a contest featured by good and bad but far from indifferent playing, the Phi Delt defeated the Kiwanis Club 24 to 16 in an abbreviated twilight game, the first of a three-game series to decide which has the worst softball team, Thursday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The game was called at the end of the seventh inning when darkness overtook the contending teams.

Both teams batted hard but the National League cellar champions won by making fewer errors than the American League last-placers.

Kiwanis was credited with thirteen misplays and the Phi Delt with only six.

Kiwanis overcame a six-run lead and was ahead 10 to 7 at the end of the second round, but the advantage was short-lived as the Phi Delt crossed the plate five times in the third and thereafter were never headed.

Wells pitched for the winners with Harve Coates working for Ki-

ARTILLERY UNIT TO STAGE REUNION AT DAYTON NEXT WEEK

An appeal is being made to all members of the 322nd Field Artillery, whether they only attended the training period at Camp Sherman or were in France and Germany during the World War, to make an effort to attend the annual reunion to be held in Dayton, Saturday, September 15.

Headquarters will be at the Gibbons Hotel, Third and Ludlow Sts. Registration will be at 10 a. m., but members are advised that so that no matter what time they arrive they will be welcomed.

A fine program has been arranged from morning until midnight. A banquet and entertainment will be held at the Gibbons in the evening.

It is announced that the organization has only the addresses of the men who have attended previous reunions, so that unless Greene Countyans are among that number they will receive no further notification.

MAKE-UP A Romance of the Footlights by ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Mary James, eighteen and pretty, becomes a stage star in New York, appearing in productions of Mort Weidstein, noted producer. She falls in love with Ballard Riley, who is a professional man and fearful of publicity. They are married, but Ballard persuades Janet to say nothing in the meantime, for the little stage star is being prominently mentioned in the newspapers on account of a gift of $12,000 to further her musical education bequeathed by "Putty" Bigelow, who commits suicide and leaves Janet the amount. Janet had always repudiated "Putty" and hated him. As a result of the publicity, Janet decides to leave New York with Lotus Flower, little Chinese maid, and seek a position in Pittsburgh. They are accompanied by little Denny Reilly, Janet's mother's friend. Janet's mother died and she pleaded with her to look after the little fellow. Janet and Lotus Flower are leaving New York without Ballard knowing about it.

Janet is afraid she will be recognized. On her arrival in Pittsburgh, she sets out to find herself an office position.

She succeeds in getting a position as secretary to Barrie Bassett, but is apprehensive because Barrie has one of her stage pictures framed in his office and she believes he will find out who she really is. Janet goes under the name of Mary Odette.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

Janet sank into a chair and covered her face with her hands. Of all the crazy coincidences. Had anyone in the world ever had quite such a trick played upon them? In her nervousness and shock she laughed suddenly, and threw back her head.

"What lovely Sunday magazine material this would make!" She sat dully, for a while, feeling trapped and choked. Then she walked to the large mirror and looked at herself, long and earnestly. It wasn't possible that anyone would recognize her without her long hair. Then, too, her eyes seemed to look different. And with her severe business clothes.

It was nonsense. Barrie Bassett would never recognize in little work-day Mary Odette, the Broadway butterfly, Janet James, who had won his admiration across the footlights in "Blue Laws of 1928."

Suddenly Janet's sense of humor came to the rescue. She really found herself smiling at the situation. Then, by turns, she would be frightened and amused. Her nerves were about at the breaking point with the play that had been brought to bear on them in the past few days.

She thought of Ballard and was swept with a hopelessness that made her sick with longing. She was his wife. But what a farce it all was! Must she go through life with just that one afternoon in the studio to remember as her own?

Bride struggled with despair, and in the hour that Janet spent alone in her new office she pulled herself together. By the time Barrie Bassett strode in, with his hat tilted on the side and swinging a cane, she was able to greet him as any girl might who was saying good morning to her new boss for the first time.

He nodded a crisp "good morning," then something in her southern throaty voice caught his ear and he turned and looked at her suddenly. His stare was long and impertinent.

"You have a nice voice—a southern voice. I like girls around me whose voices are pleasing to my weary ear."

Janet stood with her face averted toward the window, her heart beating wildly. What if he should recognize her voice?

Barrie Bassett threw himself in the chair at his desk and she turned with a nervous little smile to find him looking at her closely with a curious, half-amused look in his eye.

"What did you say your name was?"

"Mary—Mary Odette," Janet nearly choked on the words, and when Bassett said, "Yeah—nice name, Mary," she felt her knees growing weak under her.

"Well—Mary?" She felt that he dwelt on the Mary. "How about taking a letter. Can you take dictation?"

Janet's answer was a meek little "yes, sir." And she reached for a pad and pencil. Half in shorthand, and half in long hand, she managed to get through it—and to keep the pad concealed so that Bassett would not know how ignorant she was of secretarial work. It was a letter to a New York firm ordering six new shirts and a dozen ties.

When Janet had finished the letter he signed it, not taking his eyes from her face.

"Do you think you are fooling me?"

"Well, hair is easily cut—and it's being done." He stepped very close to her—so close that his breath felt hot on her cheeks. She stepped back, her hand suddenly going to her heart—then sat down in a chair.

"Why are you so pale—Janet James?" She heard his voice coming to her from what seemed a great distance. "Do you think you are fooling me?"

He went on cruelly, as she sat with her hands over her face. "Fool me? When I sat in the front row every night for two weeks and worshipped you—idolized you—went crazy over you. Then one night at the Guinan club I sat at the next table and listened to you talk, and danced so close to you I touched you."

"Please—please," Janet gave a scared little cry. "Please let me go—and say nothing—oh, you mustn't give me away."

"Give you away." He stepped close and shook his head. "No, now, when I have you right here in my office. I'm the best friend you have. Come to lunch and we'll talk it over. Meet me downstairs in fifteen minutes. What say?"

Janet felt hopelessly trapped—

reels is poured the raw corn and rye whiskey which the bootleggers make. The kegs are then placed in a steam room and the flavor of the real liquor that the barrels formally contained is "sweetened" into the raw rye and corn. The genuine flavor makes it possible to sell $1.50 whiskey for $10 and $12 a quart.

The alcohol trade is carried on on a bigger scale, and shipments are made to cities here—run in country. Even before prohibition Philadelphia was the center of the industrial alcohol industry and now, officials say, the city's liquor ring supplies the necessary ingredient for a large part of the nation's gin.

Most of the alcohol plants—there are supposed to be at least eight large ones here—run as perfume factories, and the alcohol which is shipped out on trains is labeled either "perfume" or "paint."

The large volume of alcohol that moves out of Philadelphia each week makes it imperative that the liquor syndicate has a small army of guards and "trailers." That is where the gangsters come in. They hire themselves out to the syndicate to see that the liquor shipment reaches its destination.

When one gang is in the hire of the syndicate, the rival group will turn hijackers and stick-up men to earn its living. Thus there is a constant warfare—a battle which is likely to flare into murder at any minute.

Many persons who have investigated the Philadelphia liquor ring erroneously link it with Scarface Al Capone's gang in Chicago. Philadelphia gangsters say they have no connection with Capone.

She's Slender Now

Pretty Molly O'Day, movie actress, who, despairing of losing superfluous fat by dieting, allowed a Los Angeles surgeon to trim away five pounds of flesh from hips and legs. Her contract provides that she shall not exceed 118 pounds.

BELLING BIRDS

Sleigh bells is the unique method being employed by one W. Market St., resident in an effort to drive away black birds that become a nuisance about this time of the year by infesting tree tops in certain parts of the city.

The bells, hung in the trees, are attached to a string connecting with the owner's residence. When the racket made by the bells becomes great, the owner merely pulls the string, jingles the bells and the birds scatter. The success of the plan is only temporary, however, as the birds always return the following evening. Roman candles have been tried with some slight success in other communities.

The Theater

Broadway is Broadway once again. With the first falling leaves and the smell of autumn in the air, come the new shows and the blubs of the critics.

According to "Time" there are no new shows but the offerings of the past season continue among the ranks of the best plays in Manhattan. There is listed "Porgy," "Coquette," "Strange Interlude," "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "The Silent House," "Diamond Lil," "The Royal Family" and "Volpone."

Willard Mack is back again this season with a new play, "Gang War." He has taken the adventures of a beer king, guerilla fighting, bootlegging gangs, their women and killings, to form a piece of tense action, and picturesque reality.

"Relations" is another offering recently presented for Broadway's inspection. This is another Jewish story, with unfriendly relations, the descent of the family and the proof of the adage that blood is thicker than water.

A. E. Thomas who wrote "Come Out of the Kitchen" and other successes and George Middleton, of "The House of a Thousand Candles," "Polly With a Past" and others, collaborate on "The Big Pond," another new one. This is

Poems that Live

DEATH'S SUBTLE WAYS

VICTORIOUS men of earth, no more
Proclaim how wide your empires are:

Though you bind in every shore,
And your triumphs reach as far

As night or day,
Yet you, proud monarchs, must obey,

And mingle with forgotten ashes when
Death calls ye to the crowd of common men.

Devouring famine, plague, and war,
Each able to undo mankind,
Death's servile emissaries are;
Nor to these alone confined,
He hath at will

More quaint and subtle ways to kill.
A smile or kiss, as he will use the art,
Shall have the cunning skill to break a heart.

—James Shirley (1596-1633)

ANOTHER VICTORY! NEW HEALTH COMES THROUGH KONJOLA

Stomach Trouble and Kidney Pains Are Quickly Ended by This New Remedy

This celebrated Konjola medicine helps Nature restore the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy, normal action. Most of the common disorders of the important functional organs have been conquered by this new compound. The people of Xenia are strongly endorsing it. Over a hundred testimonials have been received within a few short weeks, all from men and women in this vicinity and the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, is kept busy each day explaining this remarkable remedy to local people.

One of the latest endorsements came from Mrs. Mary Gooding, Stelton Road, this city, who made the following statement:

"I want to endorse such a wonderful medicine as your Konjola," said Mrs. Gooding. "It stopped my stomach and kidney trouble when all else failed."

"I was in a general rundown condition and my stomach was the worst of all. After nearly every meal gas would rise up into my chest and throat cutting off my wind and virtually choking me. I bought everything I could, to help relieve this awful ailment but I could never find anything that would do me the slightest bit of good. A hot, sour, bitter liquid would then come up into my mouth burning like fire and the only relief I could get from it would be soda and even then the relief would only be temporary. My heart would flutter and palpitate so much that at times I thought I had heart trouble. My kidneys were in a frightful condition and the pains caused by them are untold. My feet and ankles would swell and the pains across the small of my back were terrific. At night I couldn't sleep well but had to rise several times due to bladder weakness. The following morning when I got up I felt worn out and I didn't feel like doing anything. These many ailments were sapping my weight and strength so much that soon I was just a mere semblance of my former self."

"This was my condition before I found Konjola and there were times when I would have been thankful if something would have happened to end it all. My husband had gotten such a wonderful relief by taking Konjola that I thought I would try it too and see if it wouldn't help me. I commenced taking it and before the first bottle was gone I could see a vast improvement coming over my whole system in general. I continued with this medicine until I had completed a full treatment. Now, my stomach trouble is over. I can sit down and eat anything that is placed before me without suffering the least bit of after eating pains. My kidneys are well and strong again and when I go to bed I can sleep right on through the night without ever having to get up. I honestly feel one hundred per cent improved and I owe all my good health to Konjola."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free sample given.

Dead in Air Crash

M. Maurice Bowkanowski, French minister of commerce and aviation, who was burned to death with four companions when his plane caught fire 300 feet in the air near Toul. The cabinet official had just come from a luncheon at home of Premier Poincare and was en route to an air meet at Clermont-Ferrand.

DR. RALPH JOHN TO HEAD ORGANIZATION

Dr. J. Ralph John, Baltimore, Md., former Xenian, was elected president of The International Chiropractic Congress, consisting of all chiropractic schools, state associations and examining boards, formulated during the convention of delegates of the chiropractic profession, in Chicago, this week.

Dr. John returned to Xenia Thursday from Chicago, to accompany his family east, after a visit here.

The congress is the largest organization in the world in which the chiropractic profession is interested.

POLICE VACATION SCHEDULE RESUMED

Patrolman Charles Thompson is enjoying a two-weeks' vacation from his duties on the police department. The officer began his leave last Saturday and will return September 16.

Patrolman J. E. Craig is next in line for a vacation followed by Night Desk Sergeant H. L. Karch, and the vacation schedule will be concluded.

Patrolman Fred Jones is taking the night trick while Thompson is out duty.

ANTIOCH OPENING NOT TO BE DELAYED

While authorities at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, will be somewhat inconvenienced in placing incoming students because of the fire August 30 which partly destroyed West Hall, men's dormitory, the blaze has not delayed the opening of the college.

Work has already been begun on rebuilding the least damaged end of the building, and it is estimated that one-half of the dormitory will be ready for occupancy within a week when the college opens, and the other half in another month.

Work has been held up pending

inspection by insurance adjusters. The twenty men, who would normally room in the part of the building that was completely destroyed, will be temporarily housed in other paces in the village.

EXPECT 650 WILL COME TO ANTIOCH

With registration of new students at Antioch College scheduled to take place Monday, September 10, students will come from all over the United States, thirty-six states being represented, and from many foreign countries as well.

The college enrollment for the year is estimated at 650.

With the freshmen of Division "B" stopping at college before going to their jobs, Antioch has already taken on the appearance of mid-year activity.

Students who are now coming to college leave Saturday and their places will be taken by students who are to start school with Division "A" under the co-operative system of education.

The new students were entertained Thursday night at an informal meeting at the home of David S. Hanchett, dean of men, and at a party at North Hall.
